Survey of Digital Retirees re: HP Open Enrollment changes

Did you retire (e.g., SERP or official retirement) from Digital Equipment before 1996? If so, Bob Moore jayhawkbob@verizon.net would like to hear from you, regardless if you are a DEC Connection member or not.

Please reply to him at the email above, and Bob will let you know as much as he knows about the change mentioned on page 14 of the HP Open Enrollment package you might have received in Postal Mail recently. If you want further information please make sure your reply mentions your full name while at DEC, the year you retired, and your current 5 digit postal code. i.e., Bob is C. - Bob Schuetz, former District Software Manager, NW District, Redmond, WA. After DEC and several other major players in the IT world, I was laid off right in the middle of our bad economy. I invented a rack to store swimming pool floats for my own use and everyone kept telling me I should market it. Well, with plenty of time on my hands, I started my own company: floatstorage.com. I'm now featured in several major catalogs and pool accessory web sites. My utility patent is applied for and I now have four registered trademarks. Visit www.floatstorage.com. If you have a pool, live near a lake or the ocean, or just like swimming pool toys, you'll like what my site has to offer. Note: Bob is our current Featured Entrepreneur on our website.
- Lou Greer: I am settled in Greenville, SC with my new wife Dee Shields (9/22/2008). I am mostly retired, but am active in teaching at a local college, supporting the arts and refereeing high school lacrosse. A Greenville highlight is the "Drive," our minor league baseball team that is an affiliate of the Red Sox. Our ball park has the same dimensions as Fenway, including the fabled "Green Monster" in left field.
- Roxana Sanchez - I am still married to my husband of many years. My two daughters finished college. My older one has a good job in New York City and my younger one is a graduate student on the West Coast. Professionally since I left Digital/Compaq I have worked in controllership functions in colleges and in non-profits. I also worked as a Senior Consultant in a national consulting firm in the Higher Education practice. Currently I am looking for a new job opportunity.
- Sonia Mirkin (339-234-6325) I'm a full time real estate agent with RE/MAX. It's a great honor to help buyers find their dream home. I have a commitment to the sellers to sell their homes in today's market. Thanks to Digital my project management skills are a great help in Real Estate.
- Terry Keeney: I worked for Digital for 25 yrs, then Compaq, then HP and then retired in June 2002. At this time I started my own Handyman business. I spend my days driving around Sudbury Ma. fixing people's houses and having a great time. Thanks for asking.
