

 DEC Connection
 Personal Interests
 Volunteerism
 SKYWARN

« previous next »

Pages: [1]

Author Topic: SKYWARN (Read 556 times)

will_emerson
 Underwriting Technical Assistant
 Jr. Member

 Posts: 90

 SKYWARN
 « on: September 10, 2007, 05:25:58 PM »

Ever wonder about those "National Weather Service Spotters" that you hear "reported <X> weather event"? Believe it or not, just ordinary citizens going about their everyday lives, who have chosen to take a free (about 3 hours or so) training session, and are willing to report what they observe during severe weather. Although a lot of Skywarn spotters are radio amateurs, it is by no means a requirement. A simple telephone and an interest in weather will do. I've been a member since 1996. Check out <http://www.erh.noaa.gov/box/SkyWarn.shtml> and <http://users.rcn.com/rmacedo/>. Simple to do, could be a lifesaver.

Cet espace à louer - This space for rent

Report to moderator  71.184.205.158 (?)

In fond memory
Herbert Henry Clean
23 Feb 1928 - 08 Feb 2011

Pages: [1]

« previous next »

Jump to: => Volunteerism

